"La Source"

Every fortified domain had a water source. This was essential for survival in the event of a siege. Water and life were very much intertwined with each other. A poor or vulnerable water supply could lead to a quick surrender with disastrous consequences.

Well, for our domain, this source is located within this lot. A very pretty well, built entirely of stone, just a few steps from the backdoor and with a view to the south.

Hence the name "La Source". A large boxom hedges alongside an authentic stone wall sets the separation with the neighbour.

"La vieille tour" and three beautiful chestnut trees, in the bloom of their lives, form a separation with the garden of the "Ecurie". From this part of the garden you have an exceptional view.

Also here are a few giant boxom hedges, cut the French way for centuries to take this size and shape.

On the north side are a couple of car spaces, a beautiful terrace and a small library with a cellar underneath.

A swimming pool or large Jacuzzi with jet-streams is included, as indicated on the plan.

Changes can be made and plans can be "tailored" together with the future buyer.

It is on the top of the door of this house that the "fleur de Lys" can be seen behind a water pipe! Nobility was certain to have lived here.
